Think different, make a difference

There is no way around it: the sustainability challenges we face as a human race are serious. The options, in all likelihood, are changed or be changed. The task: think different in order to make a difference.

By combining their strength and expertise the five partners that co-created this e-learning platform hope to promote the sustainable way of thinking that can underpin truly responsible business. The content roughly breaks down into three sections: the business side of things (management know-how), the technological side of things (engineering know-how) and, framing it all, the ethical-philosophical side of things (the know-what).

Feel free to browse, read, reflect, use, try out, share, add and comment.
